TTT in the Cloud!

We are delighted to announce the successful launch of our exciting new TTT web application! Our entire legacy site, 3 decades of data, has been successfully migrated into our new cloud-based software framework. From this robust application framework, new features can be reliably added, so we can now create the application of our members' dreams!

The new application includes many improvements like the new "Member Section" (which you will see when you log in), substantial increase in response speed, and improvements on the "Search Properties" page and Membership Application. Plus, owners and managers of vacation rental properties can add links to their rental listings on VRBO and Airbnb (or any other rental website) in their property profile on our web application. Members and the general public will be able to view rental listings, calendars, and maps. Please note that the mapping function on property profiles is not yet working but soon will be and we'll be adding calendars.

Established in August of 1991 (the same week the World Wide Web became publicly available), TTT has traveled a long and illustrious road to become a modern, responsive, cross-browser, cross-device, and mobile-friendly solution.

Speaking of internet history and TTT, over 20 years ago I noticed that many visitors were coming to our website from Craigslist which seemed odd because we had never posted anything on Craigslist. I clicked the link the visitors were coming from and found a post by Craig Newmark (founder of Craigslist) saying he wanted to build a new website and was looking for developers. He wrote that before applying for the job, developers should first view 5 links showing pages which were similar to what he would like to create. Out of the 5 pages he posted, 3 were pages on our Trade To Travel website. Out of all the websites in the world, Craigslist wanted to copy TTT. Over the decades, so many companies and websites have copied us in so many ways and now that we're in the cloud, we're going to give them lots more to copy as we once again create a revolutionary state-of-the-art site for our members.

We would appreciate if you could please log in to validate that all your information has migrated successfully and to update your information and photos if you would like. Here's a link to the new application for your convenience:
